This fan-fiction article, School of the Racoon, was written by Witcher190. Please do not edit this fiction without the writer's permission.

The School of the Racoon is a witcher school that Fabio Sachs and Putnam Pitch heard about on their expedition to the Far East along with the School of the Koala from the Mardu who joined the expedition, when they recognized Putnam as a witcher.

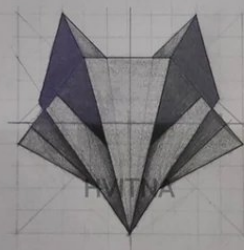

Which would have been set in a ancient and abandoned okamese temple known as Gingaqu located in a new theorized continent called by Fabio Sachs the Eastern Continent.

History

According to further studies on Mardu legends, this alleged witcher school would be a splinter faction of the School of the Rat with nobler ideas, similar to those of the Order of Witchers in the 10th century, but with a different approach, which would be to help people with the monsters hidden in the cities.

This idea was apparently abandoned over time and the raccoons evolved into a faction more dedicated to dealing with humans and their problems. To defend the people from their rulers more than from the monsters that stalked them, thus becoming a kind of vigilantes.

Becoming the "thieves" who are considered in their myths.

Apparently, they were once established at Nilfgaard, but soon abandoned that location, heading further east, since they had problems with the Nilfgaardian Republic arriving at the time of the greatest expansion of the Okamese Empire, which by this time, was dedicated to trying to eliminate the ancestors of the Mardu in order to colonize the interior of the Eastern Continent. According to the Mardu, they prevented their ancestors from being killed, which allowed their subsequent emigration to the Continent, All this thanks to the sabotage they did against the Okamese Empire.

Because of this, the Mardu believe that The Great Fire may have been a response to these sabotage and that this same fire caused his disappearance, as well as possibly that of the School of the Koala who protected the people of the Eastern Continent from the monsters.

Characteristics

According to what can be extracted from the Mardu legends, the raccoons had similar equipment to the School of the Rat, but even more focused on stealth. Speculations by Fabio Sachs, say that perhaps some of this equipment was taken by the famous ninjas of the Okami Islands.
